FINANCE DEPARTMENT (CENTRAL DIVISION).

Madras, the 23rd May 1931.

Since the conclusion of the settlement between Lord Irwin and Mr. Gandhi, the Government of India have been engaged in settling the details of arrangements and regulations in various districts to give effect to clause 16 of the settlement which relates to the collection and manufacture of salt by local residents in villages immediately adjoining areas where salt could be collected or made. These details shall now be generally completed and the general manner in which effect is to be given to the arrangements may be stated as follows:—

(1) Clause 16 is intended to benefit the poor classes. It will be open therefore to those in villages adjoining salt areas to make or collect salt for domestic use and sale in their respective villages.

(2)—Locally available salt is to be used, unless it is found to be inferior to the salt imported.

(3) For this purpose the villages may make salt pans or beds.

(4) There should be no sale of salt for purposes of trade outside the village. It is further provided that such salt can be carried only on foot and not in carts or such other conveyances.

(5) Wherever manufacture of salt under the foregoing clause is permitted salt pans will not be denied or otherwise interfered with by Government officers and regular watches will be withdrawn.

(6) The collection will be withdrawn from villages where it is found that it is abused. Wherever it is discovered that salt is manufactured or collected in quantities above the requirements of a particular village those of the Government will be purchased.

Tendering Conditions

The rains quoted will include loading into parts of Tudport Station Yard, sorting charges into town, shipping into various depots, re-loading and carting as found necessary from the depots to the site of the work. They further include all levies from the time the pipes are fittings are handled over for carting at Tudport Station Yard till the pipes are laid and certified to have passed a hydro test of 500 feet head as specified for laying, lowering, etc.

2. All pipe which is cracked or broken by the contractor or his men between the time of laying out the pipe at Taipei Station Yard and the laying and joining the same at Taipei town will be handled over to the buying contractor at the cost of the same at rates of supplying material will be recovered from his monthly bill. The Subdivisional Officer, however, may also demand portions to be cut off and good lengths be used in the work in which the contractor is engaged, cutting off the cracked and weak pipe for an additional joint made, thereby the pipe will be obliged to take over the cracked portion which have been cut off at the rate quoted by the pipe supplying contractor. If an order, by the Assistant Engineer, all cracked and broken pipes shall be removed from the site within three days. Flanged pipes, bends, tees, junctions, valves, etc., which have been broken by the contractor shall not be accepted for the work and the contractor shall pay for them. For the purpose of taking over the cracked and broken pipes, the contractor, if the work is not completed at the end of the month and prior to the closing of the month, shall be obliged to pay the amount of

Specimen work.

Laying and jointing of cast iron pipes.

1. Removal of trenches—The trenches shall be excavated to the grade and depth as the lines as per drawings or as defined by the Executive Engineer, or his assistant.

For the bedding of the sockets and to facilitate jointing the excavation shall be carried down to 6" below the barrel bed line for the full width of the trench and to a depth of 6" on either side of the socket ends.

If at rock the excavation shall be carried down to 6" below the barrel bed line and refilled to this level with solid measured earth. If in soft earth the bed of the trench shall be well rammed before laying the pipes.

2. Materials excavated—The various materials excavated shall be separated and stored so that in refilling they may be used in the same order.

3. *Laying, or—*Workmen shall be engaged at night and all lamps shall be placed at the ends and sides of the trench at regular intervals from the face of opening up to the bedding of the trenches.

4. Bedding of pipes—When ready for laying, the pipes shall be laid at along the side of the trench, each pipe to its proper position for laying. Where the trench crosses a road or area where such distribution is inadequate, the pipes should be stacked in heaps at each end sufficient for the length, small pipes may be stacked at intervals of 100 feet along the trench provided there is sufficient space.

5. Laying and jointing—(a) Spigot and socket pipes—The pipes shall be laid in position in the trenches the socket ends in all cases being up hill. Except in cases to be treated with a special casing, any condition, either in soil or situation less than 11" shall usually allowed by laying the straight pipes round a curve of such a radius that the minimum thickness of lead on the face of the sockets shall not be reduced below 1" or the opening between the spigot and the socket increased beyond 1" at every joint. The spigot shall now be carefully centered in the socket by running home successive rings of white lamp glass put to a depth only sufficient to admit of the full depth of lead as specified in paragraph 7 below for each joint. The proper depth for lead shall be measured before running the lead by passing completely round the joint a wooden pencil marked to the correct depth of the lead, the depth of the lead being measured at the face of the socket. The pipes shall be packed carefully underneath the barrels and sockets so that they shall bear properly throughout their entire length.

Leading the joints—This shall be done either by the use of proper leading rings or by supplying a thick ring of lamp glass covered with fine dry sand throughout and, when up in position to be leaded leaving this on the top and which socket lead shall be poured till the joint is filled. The lead used shall be soft and free from admixture of iron and shall be approved by the Executive Engineer or his assistant before the work is commenced. It should be best in quality, new, refined pig lead containing not less than 10% per cent of true elemental metallic lead. Old rammed lead shall not be used.

Depth and weight of lead for each joint—The following shall be the depth of lead joints and weights of lead to be used for the same:

Diameter of pipe in inches.	Depth of lead in inches.	Weight of lead in lb. per joint.
6	2.4	2.0
8	2.5	2.0
4	2.0	2.0
3	2.0	2.0
2½	2.0	2.0

Caulking—When the lead has hardened the lamp glass should be removed and caulking commenced. Caulking shall be done at least three separate times all round the joint with proper caulking tools of increasing thickness for each round and thickness of not less than 4 lb. at weight shall be used. The joints shall be made solid and thoroughly watertight.

(b) Flanged pipes—The flange face shall be thoroughly cleaned of all rust and dirt the bolts shall be passed through the holes of the flange of the preceding pipe and strip of soft lead where of about thickness of pipe shall then be passed round the flange face and fixed in position. The next flange shall then be centered over the bolts and when the flange faces together the bolts shall be tightened up sufficiently to prevent leakage or action of air into the joints. Bolts, nuts and washers required for jointing flanged ends of pipes, valves and specials will be supplied separately.

6. Testing—Before the trenches are filled the pipe lines shall be tested in convenient lengths depending on the surface of the water supply to the use of the test pump as specified by the Executive Engineer or his assistant in placing valves or blank flanges at such end of the length to be tested, filling the line with river water, and raising the pressure by means of a test pump provided by the contractor for the purpose.

The lines shall be tested to withstand a head of 20 feet without any leakage at the joints. If leakage occurs at any joint, the same shall be rectified either by further caulking or by turning of the lead and raising the joint, as constructive. When a line is tested and when a certificate has been granted by the Assistant Engineer to the effect that the line has withstood the pressure of 20 feet head without leakage the trench shall be filled in.

7. Filling in of trenches—This shall be done at 10" layers each of which shall be thoroughly rammed before the next is laid. Care shall be taken to place a layer of sand with each round and over the pipes to a depth of 10" above the trench. The depth of 3 inches above the ground surface and allowed to settle for one month before making up roadway, etc. Care should be taken however, to improve roads, and measures to keep the road earth as near as possible to the road level at all times filling up to that level from time to time when settlement takes place.

All surplus earth not required for filling shall be removed immediately the trenches are filled to place as well as specified by the Assistant Engineer.
